91%: A FILM ABOUT GUNS IN AMERICA
Directed by John Richie
2016, 71 minutes
Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $800
Optional closed captions

The debate for gun control has become one of the most contentious issues in recent times. In the wake of the Sandy Hook massacre, a poll revealed that 91% of Americans support comprehensive background checks that could prevent thousands of similar gun violence tragedies nationwide. In this timely documentary, survivors of gun violence tragedies tell their heartbreaking tales of loss, pain, and a heroic search for hope. Throughout these otherwise unrelated shootings, we find a common thread – the gunmen had effortless access to the virtually untraceable, high-powered weaponry used in their attacks.

Moving beyond perplexing gun control politics and avoiding any discussion about the often-unpredictable motivations of rampage killers, 91% demonstrates that Americans almost unanimously support both 2nd amendment rights and common sense regulation. The film finds a shared language between citizens on both sides of the issue, encouraging them to move common sense policy forward by speaking up in a conversation typically dominated by firearm lobbyists and manufacturers.

LIMITED PARTNERSHIP
Directed by Thomas G. Miller
2014, 74 minutes
Purchase: $395 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $890

Decades before the Defense of Marriage Act and Proposition 8, one gay couple fell in love and took on the US government to fight for marriage and immigration equality. Limited Partnership tells the poignant story of Filipino-American Richard Adams and his Australian husband, Tony Sullivan, who in 1975, became one of the first same-sex couples to be legally married in the world. This award-winning documentary recounts their 40-year struggle to stay together, and parallels the history of the LGBT marriage and immigration equality movements.

Immediately after getting married in Colorado in 1975, Richard filed for a green card for Tony based on their marriage. Richard received a denial letter from the Immigration and Naturalization Service stating, “You have failed to establish that a bona fide marital relationship can exist between two faggots.” Outraged at the tone, tenor and politics of this letter and to prevent Tony’s impending deportation, the couple sued the U.S. government. This became the first federal lawsuit in U.S. history seeking equal treatment for a same-sex marriage.

“The documentary serves as a relevant LGBT-rights history lesson and is equally a poignant love story. Adams and Sullivan come across as unsung civil-rights pioneers and inspiring examples of enduring love.” —San Francisco Examiner

“The film constantly educates its audience and offers perspective on the wider history of the fight for equality by LGBT community and same-sex bi-national couples.”
—The Independent Film Quarterly

“Highly Recommended. The film is poignant, deeply moving and beautifully narrated.”

ALL ABOUT ANN: GOVERNOR RICHARDS OF THE LONE STAR STATE

Directed by Keith Patterson and Phillip Schopper

2014, 82 minutes

Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125

DVD+Digital Site License: $800

Feisty, fiery, a force of nature, and funny as hell. These are a few of the terms used to describe Ann Richards, one of the most charismatic American political figures of the last 30 years. This compelling portrait tells her remarkable story, from the young girl who grew up poor in rural Texas to the beloved national icon and Democratic leader who rose to power in a conservative stronghold.

Governor Richards was the first woman to be elected to the Texas’ highest office. She emerged on the national stage as Texas state treasurer delivering a blistering keynote speech at the 1988 Democratic National Convention. As state treasurer, she computerized public finances and set revenue records. As governor, she diversified state government, used her political opponents, and recruited support, all while promoting her platform, disarming her political critics, and speed bumps.”

“All About Ann tells the story of an incredibly powerful female figure, inspiring then, and now."

“Highly Recommended. A subtle editorial on the state of women in politics in the U.S. This superb work focuses on themes and devices used in her political campaigns, demonstrating how she promoted her platform, disarmed her political opponents, and recruited support, all while dealing with health issues and media questions about alleged drug abuse.”

—Educational Media Reviews Online

“This funny and compelling film is recommended to all viewers interested in American politics.”

—Library Journal

“Richards’s easy humor and obvious zest for politics will keep most students engaged.”

RADICAL GRACE

Directed by Rebecca Parrish

2015, 86 minutes

Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125

DVD+Digital Site License: $800

Optional closed captions

A riveting example of feminist disobedience, Radical Grace follows three extraordinary American Catholic nuns—including Sister Simone Campbell who plays a pivotal role in the organization of the Nuns on the Bus—who faithfully honor their vow of obedience to God, even when it means angering the Church hierarchy. As modern-day feminist nuns, Simone Campbell, Jean Hughes and Chris Schenk lead very different lives—yet they are united by the common bonds of fierce devotion to their faith and commitment to the Catholic social teachings of justice, equality and freedom from poverty and oppression. In April 2012, the Vatican formally censures the American nuns, criticizing them for spending too much time on social justice issues like poverty and not enough time opposing abortion and gay marriage.

The nuns refuse to back down. From their cross-country Nuns on the Bus tour, to serving those on the margins, to a continued struggle for Catholic women’s religious equality, these sisters are transforming American politics—and the Church itself.

“Highly Recommended. Utilizing footage from major news outlets to frame the issues, Parrish follows the sisters through a tumultuous time.”

SHE’S BEAUTIFUL WHEN SHE’S ANGRY

Directed by Mary Dore

2014, 92 minutes

Purchase: $395 | Classroom rental: $125

DVD+Digital Site License: $890

An essential documentary about the birth of the women’s liberation movement, She’s Beautiful When She’s Angry tells the story of one of the most important social movements of the 20th century.

“An urgent, illuminating dive into the headwaters of second-wave feminism. She’s Beautiful When She’s Angry is the best filmed account of how that happened you could ever expect to see.”

—Village Voice

“An enticing blend of historical clips and interviews. There’s a warm, wise, passionate glow to a great political success story.”

—The New Yorker

“A feminist film masterpiece. Offers an inspiring account of the women’s liberation movement of the late 1960s.”

—Ms Magazine

“Excellent research and broad scope, examining the people, the politics, the media, and the society of the times and these women’s shocking struggles. Recommended to all generations of women, and men, to remind us of what these courageous pioneers faced and the dangers of taking things for granted and letting progress erode.”

—Library Journal

“This is the best film yet about the women’s movement, and it will be invaluable as a teaching resource.”

—The American Historian

The heroic story of the first woman to run for President of Afghanistan. Frontrunner introduces us to Dr. Massouda Jalal, a mother of three children, whose campaign inspired thousands of women across the country to participate in the democratic process.

“Recommended. Frontrunner offers a fine portrait of one committed woman, while also reminding us that while the road to democracy may be worth traveling, it invariably features numerous potholes and speed bumps.”

CITY OF TREES
Directed by Brandon Kramer
2015, 76 minutes
Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $800
Optional closed captions

A complex tale of social justice, urban forestry and community politics, City of Trees portrays the struggles of a DC non-profit to challenge the cycle of poverty and violence in blighted urban areas by implementing an ambitious “green jobs” program that hires 150 unemployed residents to plant trees in underserved parks. What sounds like a simple goal — putting people back to work by planting trees in a blighted neighborhood — becomes complicated by local racial tensions, a community’s entrenched distrust of outsiders, and a fast-approaching deadline before the grant money runs out.

“Beautiful and engaging. City of Trees offers a great “new narrative” to counter the conventional formula of the traditional success story and explores different dimensions of social and environmental justice.” —Thomas Walker, PhD Director of the Environmental Studies Program, Goucher College

“A terrific labor film. It uses an environmental program as a prism into the interconnected intricacies of work, race, class, urban space, male breadwinner gender roles and community politics.” —Jason Kozlowski, Labor Historian and Labor Educator West Virginia University Institute for Labor Studies and Research

THE HILL
Directed by Lisa Molomot
2013, 60 minutes
Purchase: $310 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $720

Clinging to the last affordable housing in a rapidly gentrifying city, a determined group of neighbors come together when the city claims eminent domain over their land in order to build a new school. An absorbing look at the complex issues surrounding urban planning, gentrification and economic renewal.

★★★★ “Telling a timely human story about the potential downsides of urban planning, this is recommended.” —Video Librarian

✔ “Highly Recommended. Immediately draws the audience into the controversial issues surrounding the political practices of urban renewal, socio-economical inequalities, and the ugly outcome of poor planning triggered by city leaders.” —Educational Media Reviews Online

“An inspiring example of what community action can accomplish... this film illustrates how it’s possible for even the common man to have his say and to fight back.” —Library Journal

ZIPPER: CONEY ISLAND’S LAST WILD RIDE
Directed by Amy Nicholson
2012, 77 minutes
Purchase: $310 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $720

A documentary about greed, politics, urban development and renewal, the award-winning Zipper: Coney Island’s Last Wild Ride is an absorbing chronicle of the efforts to redevelop an iconic American landmark, Coney Island.

“Interviews with government officials, local residents, and those with businesses in Coney Island provide first-hand accounts of changes in the area and its short and long-term impacts.” —Anthropology Review Database

“An excellent document of how wrenching change can be.” —Architectural Record

THE ABORTION HOTLINE
Directed by Fernando López Escrivá
2016, 57 minutes
Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $800

Chile is one of six countries in the world where abortion is prohibited under any circumstance, even in cases of rape or risk to the life of the mother. Despite this prohibition, each year, several tens of thousands of Chilean women have illegal abortions conducted in secrecy. This chilling documentary chronicles the Lesbians and Feminists for the Right to Information, a female collective which bypasses strict laws by giving desperate callers information about using misoprostol, a drug usually used to treat ulcers, that can also induce abortion.

F*CK FOR FOREST
Directed by Michał Marczak
2012, 85 minutes
Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $800

A compelling, thought-provoking documentary, F*ck for Forest explores a unique form of modern environmental activism where sexual liberation merges with global altruism. This critically acclaimed film follows several members of the eponymous organization as they raise money for struggling indigenous tribes in the Amazon by distributing homemade erotic films on the internet.
RAISING BERTIE
Directed by Margaret Byrne
2016, 102 minutes
Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $800
Optional closed captions

Another harrowing release from the acclaimed documentary powerhouse Kartemquin Films, Raising Bertie is an authentic and tender portrait of the lives of three young boys as they face a precarious coming of age within Bertie County, a rural African-American community in North Carolina. Recorded over six years, the film shows the process of growing up in a place afflicted by poverty, economic isolation, and educational inequity.

“The documentary brilliantly weaves the young men’s stories together, as they transition from their teens into manhood, engaged in a shared struggle for social and economic survival.”
—The Huffington Post

BROTHERS ON THE LINE
Directed by Sasha Reuther
2012, 80 minutes
Purchase: $195 | Classroom rental: $85
DVD+Digital Site License: $490

Narrated by Martin Sheen, Brothers on the Line explores the extraordinary journey and legacy of the Reuther brothers — prolific labor leaders and organizers whose crusade for social justice, at the helm of the United Auto Workers Union, forever transformed the auto industry and labor in this country.

“Shows how the brothers built the U.A.W. and how that union helped raise living standards for not just one million autoworkers, but also for a large swath of America.”
—The New York Times

THE NEW AMERICANS
Executive Produced by Steve James and Gordon Quinn
2004, 411 minutes (2-Disc Set)
Purchase: $495 | Classroom Rental: $195
DVD+Digital Site License: $1,090

A landmark seven-hour documentary series from Kartemquin Films, The New Americans follows the lives of a diverse group of contemporary immigrants — from the Dominican Republic, Mexico, India, Nigeria and Palestine — to offer a kaleidoscopic picture of immigrant life in the U.S.

“In the post-9/11 era, when many immigrants are looked upon with distrust, The New Americans offers a fresh perspective. A powerful and deeply personal documentary.”
—The Boston Globe

“Aas Goest Janslevine delivers a powerful multi-faceted account of the struggles and hopes of union workers, business leaders, and elected officials to rebuild their lives and their town’s economy following the 2008 closure of the oldest operating General Motors plant. Rouge Parole

Directed by Elyes Baccar

2011, 95 minutes

Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125

DVD+Digital Site License: $800

Optional closed captions

A gripping and timely snapshot that provides a glimpse into the plight of Syrian refugees, Rouge Parole uncovers the humanitarian efforts of a Syrian-American orthopedic surgeon who travels to the Turkish border to volunteer to operate on victims of the civil war. With a suitcase full of donated stainless-steel bone implants, Syrian-American surgeon Hisham Bismar arrives at a Turkish hospital on the Syrian border, ready for anything.

What he finds is horror, chaos, and an ocean of refugees in need of medical care: Colleagues who perform operations without anesthesia, stories of Syrian government snipers targeting children and pregnant women, and images of 55 gallon barrels filled with shrapnel and TNT dropped deliberately on civilians.

“A fine and inspiring film. A direct experience of the lives of people displaced—and often enough physically dismembered—by Middle Eastern war.”

Karama Has No Walls

Directed by Sara Ishaq

2013, 26 minutes

Purchase: $250 | Classroom rental: $125

DVD+Digital Site License: $600

Nominated for an Academy Award, Karama Has No Walls is a gripping account of the tragic day that changed the course of the revolution in Yemen; when pro-government snipers opened fire on a peaceful gathering of protesters, sparking national outrage and ultimately leading to the end of 33 years of autocratic rule. On March 18, 2011, a peaceful assembly of protesters gathered in the capital city of Sana’a to demand an end to the presidency of Ali Abdullah Saleh. After Friday prayers, gunmen ascended rooftops surrounding the square and opened fire. 53 people were killed, hundreds were injured. It was one of the bloodiest days in Yemen’s modern history.

Incorporating remarkable footage from two camera-men who were there as events unfolded, Karama Has No Walls offers a dynamic, multifaceted perspective in telling the story of a single day that altered the path of a nation.

“A snapshot of a protest movement at its most powerful, when differences (male, female, Southern, Northern, Sunni, Shia, old, young, secularist, Islamist) were put aside in the name of battling the shared injustices of poverty, unemployment, and corruption.”
—The New Yorker

“An urgent, stereotype-exploding historical document.”
—Salon

“Ishaq managed to put together twenty-six of the most powerful minutes on the Yemeni uprisings during the Arab Spring in 2011.”
—Islamic Monthly

“A remarkable street-level portrayal of a historic clash between freedom and anti-freedom.”

Purchase: $350 | Classroom rental: $125
DVD+Digital Site License: $800
Optional closed captions
What is the job of a diplomat for a country that does not exist? With this question, acclaimed filmmaker Eric Baudelaire initiates a wide-ranging correspondence with his friend Maxim Gvinjia, former Minister of Foreign Affairs for Abkhazia, a country with physical borders, a government, and its own flag, but has not been recognized as a nation. A small state by the Black Sea, Abkhazia is country whose independence remains a matter of dispute. It seceded from Georgia after the 1992-1993 civil war (which saw Russian troops assisting its efforts, like they did in South Ossetia and in Crimea). But it was never recognized by the United Nations or by most of the world’s countries.

“An illuminating snapshot of a land that has been largely off the world’s radar since the end of the civil war with Georgia in 1993.” —The Hollywood Reporter
